

OLIVE MOUNT

THE SOUK

CARPET FROM THE KA'ABA

A limited number of bespoke prayer mats (approx. 78cm x 120cm) produced from the prayer carpets taken from the Masjid al-Ḥarām in Makkah.

The carpets used for the rugs were taken from those that were placed in close proximity to the Ka'bah (these carpets usually have blue borders) and were last used in the Ḥaram in 1435 (six years ago).

The Oils

KOMRAD X

Imagine a Japanese sencha spretzer infused with pine-forest cool and citrus zest. Easily one of the most pleasant ouds out there. If you're new to oud, this is the one to get. Wear it anytime, anywhere.

Price: £195 [3 gr bottle]

MOCHA KYAKU

Oud for incense addicts—and chocolate lovers. Delicious—and addictive.

Price: £195 [3 gr bottle]

LOUD DHUL K

Fruit turns to wood, tangy cherries transmute into ripe golden pollen. Crushed wild flowers, subtle citrus honey-rich heart notes, with a soft savory-incense base.

Price: £195 [3 gr bottle]

LOUD AL-FAQĪH

Classic Cambodian oud that's chock full of woody, fruity-floral notes, with a crisp smokey tinge that intensifies its meditative pull. Dark cherries and herbs, and wafts of fragrant tobacco leaf.

Named after Sayyidunā al-Faqīh al-Muqaddam

Price: £250 [3 gr bottle]

LOUD AL-SAQQĀF

This is what oud has meant to orthodox connoisseurs for millennia. No modern tweaks, no understatements. Nothing but a full-on blast of unapologetic Cambodian oudiness.

Named after Sayyidunā Abdur Rahmān as Saqqāf

Price: £350 [3 gr bottle]

oud bin sālim

The combined distillation of an exceptionally rare 150-year-old wild crassna harvest, a montage of wild Cambodian agarwood collected from across the country, a touch of organic Thai, and wild Vietnamese oud makes Oud Bin Salim one of the most unique renditions of Indo-Chinese oud available. In addition to the rich scent profile, the oil itself is thicker than normal, almost honey-like, which adds longevity to your wear.

Named after Sayyidunā Abu Bakr bin Sālim

Price: £350 [3 gr bottle]

MIḤḌAR

Pure Cambodian Oud.

Named after Sayyidunā al-Shaykh Umar MiḥḌār

Price: £350 [3 gr bottle]

‘AYḌARŪS

Pure Cambodian Oud.

Named after Sayyidunā al-Imām al-AyḌarus al-Akbar

Price: £350 [3 gr bottle]

ḤADDAD

Pure Indian Oud.

Named after Sayyidunā Abd-Allāh ibn Alawī al-Haddād

Price: £350 [3 gr bottle]

MIDORI QI

Because you’ve just got to have a Borneo on your palette. Dried pomegranate seeds, Horlicks ice cream, clusters of cloves and cinnamon (smell it an hour in), this is a dark fruity, spicy aromatic orchestra tied together by incense-heavy heart notes. Aged 3 years.

Price: £550 [3 gr bottle]

PAPUA 2004

Rustic, like stepping straight into the heart of the jungle. Dark-green, rich and herbaceous, and a hint of mint amidst its overall earthy feel. Already aged for 14 years, it’s a rare, primordial scent that reigns in your thoughts.

Price: £550 [3 gr bottle]

The Chips

NHA TRANG ANTHOLE

A treasure for both beginners and veteran agarwood lovers. Nha Trang is to oud lovers what Dayuling is to tea connoisseurs. No better place to start your journey into the world of raw agarwood than with these Vietnamese chips.

Price: £79 [10 gr bag]

CERAM 1997

Harvested twenty-one years ago on an island I bet you've never even heard of, this is one of the rarest harvests circulating in veteran oud circles. Even back then, Ceram island oud was a rarity, which is why this batch is still around, two decades later. Here's your chance to experience pure vintage Ceram agarwood, with such a soothing note of iris that you should be surprised to find yourself in daze of calm.

Price: £150 [10 gr bag]

IRIAN NOIR

Über rare sinking-grade Irian agarwood chips. So rare, you ought to consider putting some away for posterity's sake. A deeply resinous, spice-laden burst of raw agarwood.

Price: £350 [10 gr bag]

PORT MORESBY PRIVEÉ

Try sourcing pure New Guinea oud of this caliber and you soon find yourself lost. This is ultra-fine raw New Guinea agarwood at its most fragrantest. There are days when deep blue-green chords of marmalade-infused fruit jam strum strong. Sometimes, you're drinking a amber-camphor cocktail. Other times, notes of vanilla and cinnamon pierce through much sharper. This aromatic madness makes Port Moresby Priveé the perfect batch to have lined up for any majlis.

Price: £350 [10 gr bag]

ALMAHERA 1996

These chips are already 20 years-old, harvested in 1996 on Almahera Island, a mere speck on a map of the Maluku archipelago. The totally unique scent profile and extremely limited availability means oud collectors don't have to look any further.

Price: £350 [10 gr bag]
